[SYNOPSIS]

Ji-gu, a 16-year-old juvenile offender, reunites with his young mom who he thought was dead, just before he gets discharged from the juvenile reformatory. For the first time in their lives, the two try to make up for their time lost, gradually finding out that this mother and son relationship is not going to be as smooth as they hope for.

[DIRECTOR]

Born in Seoul, KANG has dealt with in-depth stories of family and society in his films. His feature debut <Sa-kwa> in 2005, an upbeat film of a woman's conflict, parting, and choice for relationship and marriage, was invited to numerous international film festivals, winning the 30th Toronto International Film Festival Fipresci Award and the 53rd San Sebastian International Film Festival Mont Blanc Award for New Screenwriters, etc. KANG directed <If You Were Me 5: Two Teeth> in 2011 when he was offered to create a film regarding the rights of North Korean defectors by the National Human Rights Commission of Korea. After the film, he was offered again to direct a film on human rights of criminal offenders which resulted in <Juvenile Offender>.
